FORTY THOUSAND PEOPLE SEE HARVARD HUMBLE OLD ELI.

BAIL FROM HOLLAND FOR MRS. DALE'S FRIEND.

Elbert Waller Released, Comes to This City—Father of Dead Child Expected to Furnish Letters and Affidavits.

Letters written by Elizabeth Howe Dale to her husband, Harvey Dale, just before the death of her child, together with affidavits from Mrs. Dale, are expected to be in the hands of the Hoboken police before night.

Although Mrs. Dale said last night her husband would not appear against her he is now believed to be in New York with the letters and affidavits, which are expected to go far toward making up the case against Mrs. Dale.

Waller Out on Bail

Elbert Waller, Mrs. Dale's friend, who has been locked up in the Hudson County Jail, was released to-day on the deposit of $1,000 cash bail by the Dutch Vice-Consul, Hans Von Bakhuysen.

At the consulate of the Netherlands it was said that nothing was known of Waller except that he was a citizen of the Netherlands. At his request the Consul called his family in Amsterdam asking if they would furnish the money to bail him out. The money was received this morning, and the Consul was requested by the family to take any steps necessary to protect Waller's rights.

Detective Weinthal came to New York this afternoon and asked the New York police to watch all the steamship piers on this side to prevent Waller from leaving the country. He also went to the Western Union office to get an order permitting the police to examine all the telegrams that passed between Mrs. Dale and Waller and Mrs. Dale and her husband.

Detective Weinthal says that he is convinced there is a perfect case against Mrs. Dale. He finds the motive in the hatred of the woman for her husband, her love for Waller and her need for money. The death of the child would bring her money, would hurt the man she hated and would bring her closer to Waller, so the detective argues.

Experts Are at Work

Experts, led by Dr. Otto H. Schultz, of Cornell, are examining and analyzing to-day the stomach of little Emmeline Dale, whose mysterious death at Throck's Hotel, Hoboken, last Tuesday morning, has led to the arrest of her mother on the charge of murder.

None of the associate physicians would talk about the result of their labors, but Dr. Converse made this significant statement:

"We will find exactly what caused the death of Emmeline Dale, poison or strangulation. There are abundant reasons for a minute investigation."

Mrs. Dale is still in St. Mary's Hospital, under close police guard. She sent out word to the newspapers that the reports that she would benefit financially by the death of her child was absolutely false.

WALLER WOULD WED MRS. DALE.

QUEENSTOWN, Nov. 23.—As the White Star liner Cymric, from Liverpool for New York, was coming down the channel to-day this port, Thomas Halliday, who had given his residence as Ohio, created a panic among the passengers by trying to kill his wife and then committing suicide.

The dead man had prayed all night and showed evidence this morning that his mind was affected. After breakfast he announced that all the people on President, Governor and Mayor Elect Against Senator Platt.

Politicians are saying that there is a contest on between Senator Platt on one hand and Mayor-elect Lusk, Gov. Odell and President Roosevelt on the other, over the proposed appointment of Col. John N. Partridge as Police Commissioner.

Senator Platt sees in this appointment part of a plot on the part of the Governor and the President to take from him the leadership of the State machine. It is said by persons well informed that if the Mayor-elect decides upon Col. Partridge Senator Platt will be forced to give in and will make a show of doing it gracefully.

Yale Was Completely Outplayed—Her Best Men, Including Capt. Gould, Succumbed to Harvard's Fierce Attack and Left Game.

FINAL SCORE: HARVARD 22 YALE 0

(Special to The Evening World.)

BOSTON, Nov. 23.—Harvard pushed, pulled, slammed, threw and utterly crushed the gallant but outclassed sons of Eli before 40,000 people on Soldiers' Field this afternoon. It was the greatest crowd that ever saw a football game and the greatest victory Harvard ever won. The score was 22 to 0.

Harvard had the weight, the skill, the nerve. The giants of her team careened about the muddy, slippery field like athletes with webbed feet. Poor Yale was hampered by the condition of the grounds. Yet overconfident when they went in, the boys from New Haven were utterly disheartened after the first ten minutes of play. In the first half they gained a total of five yards, and Harvard played with them as a boy plays with a top.

But not until the whistle blew at the close of the contest did the men from Yale give up. They fought gamely, and the enormous gathering of enthusiasts gave them all the credit due their courage. They were grand in defeat, as Harvard was magnificent in victory.

Harvard and Yale met this afternoon for their great battle on Soldiers' Field. Both teams went into the contest in the pink of condition, Harvard not having a crumple on her list and Yale's men being perfect physical types of football warriors.

All day long the crowds kept pouring into Cambridge. The crimson of Harvard predominated, though the blue of Yale was displayed on gowns and coats. The historic old town of Cambridge was literally bathed in the deep crimson of fair Harvard. Streamers of red with the letter H in black or white floated from a thousand windows and doorways. Massachusetts avenue especially was loyal to the famous old university.

Hottels Jammed.

By 12 o'clock the corridors of all the principal hotels were jammed with enthusiasts and excited followers of Yale and Harvard. New York society was out in full force at the Touraine. A wet drizzle began early in the morning and lasted until noon, when the sky grew a bit clearer. But the ardor of the thousands who came to see the game seemed in no way to be diminished.

Yale the Favorite.

Betting prevailed at odds of 10 to 8 in favor of Yale. There was plenty of Harvard money, and everything in sight was greedily snatched up. Several large bets of a thousand to eight hundred were recorded. Yale's team arrived in Boston last night and put up at the Lenox Hotel.

Prominent graduates of Yale and their friends hovered about the team's quarters until late at night. All seemed confident of a victory. Trainer Mike

SHOT AND KILLED THIEF WHO CAME IN THE NIGHT.

Passaic Hotel Man Is Sure Burglar He Plugged Three Times in the Head Died and Was Carried Away by His Pals.

Early this morning four thieves broke into the hotel managed by George Philbrook on the river road in Garfield. They smashed a window, and were about to enter when Mr. Philbrook was aroused. He got up and secured his revolver; he watched until one of the burglars put his head in the window, when he took aim and fired twice.

He heard a shrill cry and the man dropped. He ran to the window and a body lying on the ground. He fired a third time; he is positive that he killed his man, as every bullet was fired at his head.

The three other men were seen hiding near the house. Philbrook dared not go out owing to the presence of the thieves. While he was dressing the other men ran up and, seizing the body of their comrade, carried it away before he could follow them. He summoned assistance and made a search of the woods in the vicinity, but no trace of the thieves was found. There were many blood spots on the ground. Philbrook's hotel is in a secluded locality, far from any other house.

Yesterday morning thieves broke into the store of the F. M. Swan Company, 95 Main avenue, the busiest street in Passaic, and dynamited the safe. They only secured $10.

CLEVELAND IN BED WITH A BAD COLD.

EX-PRESIDENT'S WIFE SAYS IT IS NOTHING SERIOUS.

May Be Result of Rough Weather While Cack Hunting at Cape Charles.

Ex-President Grover Cleveland is ill in bed at Princeton with a severe cold which has been troubling him all week.

Mrs. Grover Cleveland said this morning: "Mr. Cleveland is suffering from a cold in the head which he contracted a short time ago. He was most annoyed by it on Thursday, but since then has been resting comfortably. He has not been threatened with pneumonia, and if he has been in any danger whatever of serious illness, there is surely no further indication of it in his present condition. He is confined to his room, but we expect his complete recovery soon."

Dr. Wyckoff, Mr. Cleveland's physician, said to The Evening World man over the telephone:

"Mr. Cleveland has a very bad cold, and for the present he is confined to his house, but he is not seriously ill."

It was reported yesterday that Mr. Cleveland was suffering from pneumonia, caught on his recent hunting trip. It was attributed to the fact that he had spent thirteen hours exposed to the rough weather in a blind while shooting ducks at Cape Charles.

He said he alighted from the car at Cedar and Broad streets, and as he did so there was a flash in the dark and he was struck in the cheek. He remembered nothing of it at the time. The police are investigating.

Powdered Glass and Arsenic Killed C. G. Hooks, of Tennessee.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 23.—The Grand Jury to-day returned an indictment against Mrs. Maud Emma Hooks, prominently known, charging her with the murder by poison of her husband. Several weeks ago C. G. Hooks, a well-known business man, died under suspicious circumstances. A chemist was ordered to examine the remains of Hooks and perform an autopsy.

The chemist reported to the Coroner that he had found enough powdered glass and arsenic in the stomach to cause death. The case was immediately placed before the Grand Jury.

VESSEL TO BE BUILT AT YARD WHERE MEN ARE OUT.

Townsend & Downey's Works, on Shooter's Island, Likely to Be Completely Tied Up.

Emperor William of Germany is directly interested in the strike of 30 Newark and Elizabethport mechanics at Townsend & Downey's shipyard on Shooter's Island.

The strike will delay work on the Emperor's new yacht.

A non-union carpenter is the cause of the trouble, and it is expected 800 men will be out by Monday.

Townsend & Downey recently received an order from Emperor William for a private yacht. Work on the boat is scheduled to begin next week, but will necessarily be delayed unless the strike is settled.

CAPSIZED IN HEAVY SEA.

The party attempted to land from the steamer New Foundland in a small boat when off Sable Island. The boat was caught in a heavy sea and driven ashore. As it struck the sand it capsized and the occupants were washed ashore. When found, all were unconscious. They revived under treatment, and later reached Halifax.

TRANSPORT ANGEL DEAD.

Mrs. Adelaide Sullivan Was Startled by Servant—Fell and Expired.

Mrs. Adelaide Sullivan, widow of the late Dr. George R. Sullivan, known in army circles as "The Angel of the Transports," died suddenly at her home in Paterson, N. J., this morning.

At the beginning of the war with Spain Mrs. Sullivan became connected with Helen Gould in caring for the sick, wounded and destitute soldiers. While this engaged she became popular in army circles and became known as "The Angel of the Transports." The energy with which she kept up the work undermined her health and six weeks ago she returned to her home here to regain her strength.

But little improvement was noticed and a week ago she was forced to take to her bed, suffering from nervous prostration.

Dr. Sproul, her attending physician, told The Evening World correspondent this morning that his patient had been suffering from weakness of the heart during the week. She was kept under stimulants and was thought to be slowly improving.

This morning she arose from her bed to procure a glass of water upon a nearby stand. As she did so another servant entered the room, which startled her, and she dropped to the floor dead. She was about fifty-four years old.

It was Mrs. Sullivan's duty to look after the soldiers who were sick, disabled or discharged as they arrived on the transports. Those who were ill were properly cared for, and those who were suffering from weakness of the heart were given money with which to reach their homes or get employment.

She recently accompanied the transport Sedgwick to Cuba and Porto Rico.

FLAMES RAZE RACE STABLE.

High-Bred Yearlings, Numbering Unlucky 13, Saved, but Running Wild.

Newton Bennington's racing stable in Daly's lane, close to the Gravesend race track, burned to the ground this morning. The unlucky number of thirteen horses that were quartered there were saved with difficulty and just in the nick of time. They are running about through the country, and some have been heard of already going through Prospect Park at full speed.

There were eleven head of highly bred and well-trained yearlings, the four-year-old Kilogram and a valuable trotter used as a buggy horse.

The fire was discovered about 7 o'clock, just after the bell had rung for breakfast. The stable was a wooden structure and was heavily laden inside with hay, and it took only a short time to utterly destroy it.

Fire-engines from Gravesend, superintended by Chief Roberts, were soon on the ground, quickly followed by engines from Coney Island and Brooklyn. Their attention was given to saving Trainer Burlew's handsome residence, adjoining the stable. In this they were partially successful, as the best part of the household furniture was taken out into Daly's lane safely, although well burned. The roof and part of the upper floor of the residence were in flames.

A few days ago Trainer Burlew put in his winter supply of feed, which consisted of 200 sacks of oats, 100 bales of straw and 100 bales of hay. This was stowed away in the loft of the stable and was destroyed. The stabling was insured, but the policy on the house and furniture had run out about a week ago and unfortunately was not renewed up to the time of the fire.

It was fortunate that there was little wind blowing at the time, as William C. Daly's house and stable, close to Bennington's, must have been destroyed also. None of the horses have been captured as yet, although the stable hands are scouring the country after them.

VANDERBILT IN BIG MERGER.

Leaves on Important Tour of Inspection of Minor Railroads.

W. K. Vanderbilt, accompanied by President W. H. Newman of the New York Central and Lake Shore roads, with other officials of various Vanderbilt lines, has left Cleveland on an inspection tour of the Lake Shore and Lake Erie roads.

It is expected that when Mr. Vanderbilt returns it will be definitely announced that the minor companies, such as the Big Four, Lake Erie and Western, Erie and Canada Southern, have been merged into one organization, with the management concentrated in the New York Central proper, on a basis not affected by family changes.

The purpose of this merger, it is said, is to put the New York Central on a basis not affected by family changes.

The reason given for its recent great rise by well-posted observers is this: The New York Central took over control of the Lake Shore, Michigan Central, Boston and Albany and Canada Southern, guaranteeing a per cent a year.

This Lake Shore is paying about 11 per cent, the Boston and Albany 9 per cent, the Michigan Central and Canada Southern are paying not less than 10 per cent.

This gives the New York Central a very large per cent, aggregating millions of dollars a year more than it guaranteed to pay stockholders of the various subsidiary lines.

This surplus goes into the coffers of the New York Central and is added to the net revenues.

ORGANIST PEACOCK OUSTED.

Perry Peacock, organist of Grace Church in Brooklyn, was dismissed to-day. This grew out of the publication in the papers of the fact that Peacock had been caught with another man's wife in a hotel near Prospect Park.

The injured husband is Frank Dugan, of No. 33 Granite street, Williamsburg. He threatens to bring a divorce suit against his wife, Ada May Dugan, and to name Peacock as co-respondent.
